TRAINING WORKSHOP ON STATE-CIVIL SOCIETY INTERFACE FOR IMPROVED POLICY PERFORMANCE

Recent years have seen an increased demand for rethinking the role of state and engaging civil society institutions such as NGOs, voluntary groups, community associations, etc. in various tasks of governance. Despite growing expectation towards involving these institutions, there is not much clear thinking based on analysis of actual experiences and possibilities in respect of the specific directions and manner in which these can be associated or enabled to undertake certain roles. An ad-hoc approach on the matter, however, is likely to contribute to compromised on policy goals and a displacement of public interest by the private interest of some organizations. There is a need for a serious exercise towards identifying possible areas of State-Civil Society Interface for evolving strategies for gainful cooperation in pursuit of public interest.

The training workshop is aimed at such as exercise. The workshop proposed to bring together civil servants in policy-making and implementation positions and various civil society actors operating at various levels. The deliberations would involve experience-sharing as well as analysis of various possible strategies of State-Civil Society interface in India. These would broadly cover the following areas of possible engagement.

- Engagement with Policy Process
- Delegation of Tasks
- Involvement in Service Delivery
- Role in Implementation and
- Role in Monitoring, Evaluation and Feedback Process

Expected Participants

Senior and middle level officers engaged in policy making and implementation at various levels, and also representatives from civil society groups, such as non-governmental organizations, voluntary agencies and activist groups.
