Dated the 21st October, 1975.

Subject :—Counting of period of deputation towards experience in the parent department for promotion to the next higher post.

Sir,

I am directed to address you on the subject noted above and to inform you that it has come to the notice of the Government that in a department a senior employee had gone on deputation to a department of another State Govt. The Junior employee in his Parent department was promoted in his place. The senior employee remained on deputation and the employee junior to him continued working in the parent department. In the meantime the question of making promotion to the next higher post cropped up in the parent department, for which post it was necessary to have experience of a prescribed number of years on the lower post. The junior employee who had remained in the department had completed the prescribed experience and thus became eligible for promotion to the next higher post. A question then arose whether the period of deputation, should also be counted towards such an experience or not. The State Government has considered this point carefully and has decided that if the concerned employee is not permitted to report to his parent department from deputation in public interest and he reverts to his parent department after the completion of period of his deputation, then the period of deputation on an equivalent or a higher post, should be counted towards experience and if thereby he completes the prescribed period of experience he should be promoted to the next higher post in his parent department.
