PROGRAM DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

The unprecedented and extremely challenging economic and financial environment within and outside India, facing the larger template of 'Good Governance and Responsive and Value Based Management' has opened up large vistas for creation and management of knowledge and skills.

NIFM decided quite sometimes in the past to address several issues emanating from the 'New Public Management' and pointing towards a different pattern of governance culminating ultimately into cost effective delivery by the government to the largest section of the society and its citizenry.

The PGDM (FM) Program of NIFM aims at creating a strong cadre of managerial professionals within the government and several autonomous bodies created by the government at the national and sub-national level.

The package of the program includes regular sessions, brief international attachment, and dissertation writing. The Program fetches immense opportunities of interaction among the participants drawn from central, state government, autonomous bodies of central & state governments besides personnel from Indian Army, Navy and Indian Air Force.

The foreign exposure provided during the program results into immense value addition to the participants in terms of their horizon building and skill development. The participants are evaluated for their knowledge and skill not only in the country by NIFM but also by faculty of international institution located overseas. The package of exposure to international best practices is more than commensurate.

The bonding among the participants from cross-section of functionaries at local, state, central and parastatal is worth a memory and much more than the professional network that it provides.

This program has a very good opportunity for the participants in the areas of identifying their research pursuing potentials. Towards the end of the program, in the last trimester, the participants are required to take up a dissertation project. This requires identification of a contemporary topic, collection and rigorous analysis of data and finally policy recommendations, flavouring the project dissertation with attributes usable for policy framers, researchers and analysts.

In a small capsule the program provides a plethora of information, skills, knowledge and specific traits that are called for in a professional manager within and outside government.

I take this opportunity to request officials in the government and the corporate sector to take advantage of this program.
